UNITED NATIONS SERVICE MEDAL

Although the same medal is used for all the United Nations Medals, a different ribbon is authorized for each operation, the DoD has authorized only the Korea Medal for acceptance.

The Korea version here was awarded by the United Nations to all Naval Military service personnel by any country participating in the defense of Korea.

REPUBLIC OF VIETNAM CAMPAIGN MEDAL

The Secretary of Defense approved a request for foreign awards to U.S. Military personnel on 7 February 1966. As a result of this approval, the Government of the Republic of Vietnam, on 24 March 1966, awarded the Republic of Vietnam Campaign Medal with device bar "1960 -" to U.S. armed forces personnel.

The requirements for this medal are the same as the U.S. Vietnam Service Medal.

The ending date was never set, because the Republic of Vietnam government ceased to exist. This is not a DoD medal; therefore it must be purchased from commercial sources.

KOREA SERVICE MEDAL (KOREA)

In 1951, the Korean President Syngman Rhee ordered that their Korean Service Medal be authorized for any United Nations troops who were defending against Korean invasion. The U.S. declined the offer due to uniform regulations at the time.

Finally, on the 50th anniversary of the war, in the year 2000, the retroactive service medal was authorized for all eligible U.S Military personnel. The eligibility is the same as for the U.S. Korea Service Medal.
